

Locating a Living Space

Author: Avalee Jacobs,

Problem Statement

People moving are facing difficulties in finding the correct location that has all of the businesses and facilities they need to comfortably live within a preferred distance. Our solution should provide an easy way to determine the best place of living, such as an apartment or home, with the most everyday businesses or facilities, like workplaces, schools, grocery stores, and gyms, nearest to them.

Who is experiencing this problem?

People moving with a location in mind, particularly longer distances to areas they don't know well.

What is the problem?

Not being able to find a place to live with the wanted locations near it and having a hard time cross referencing different options with nearby locations.

Where does the problem present itself?

Typically online when looking on housing websites.

Why does it matter?

Moving to an area too far from a necessity like jobs, schools, or food can cause issues in everyday life while moving to an area devoid of hobbies or enjoyments can make moving to a new area unhappy and boring, both causing the move and new location to be more difficult.